Patriot Growth Insurance Services, has announced a strategic partnership with Massachusetts-based Morse Insurance Agency Inc., marking the latest addition to Patriot's rapidly expanding national network.

In an announcement on LinkedIn, Patriot said the deal is structured to bring added behind-the-scenes support and access to a broader network of resources

The move aligns with Patriot's model of enhancing local agencies' capabilities through strategic investment and operational support.

Leveraging Patriot's national scale

Morse Insurance Agency president Dan Morse said the partnership is designed to strengthen operations while ensuring consistency for clients.

"Joining the Patriot family will give my team more support, but it will not change who we are or how we work with you," Morse said.

"You will continue to see the same faces, in the same office locations, and receive the same responsive service, guidance, and expertise you count on."

The partnership allows Morse Insurance to leverage Patriot's national scale and specialized operational resources while maintaining its established local brand and service model across its communities.

Morse Insurance Agency currently serves communities including Easton, Norton, Bridgewater, and Marion.
